REPUBLIC OF RWANDA
MINISTRY OF JUSTICE

Implementing the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture (OPCAT) in Rwanda

10 Frequently Asked Questions

Kigali, November 2017

Introduction

The Ministry of Justice (MINIJUST) and the National Commission for Human Rights (NCHR) have a common responsibility of educating the population on human rights including on the national implementation of international human rights treaties.

By depositing a ratification instrument with the UN Secretariat on 30 June 2015, Rwanda became a State party to the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or degrading treatment or Punishment (OPCAT) with the obligation to establish a National Preventive Mechanism (NPM).

Since 2016, Rwanda has begun the process of establishing the NPM to implement the OPCAT.

Considering that the NPM is a new mechanism which reflects the implementation of international human rights obligations of our country under OPCAT, MINIJUST, in collaboration with the NCHR found important that an informative tool shall be developed.

In this regard, they identified a list of 10 frequently asked questions on the basis of discussions they had with stakeholders and potential actors in the area of torture prevention during consultation meetings. They provided short answers to the questions which are written in a friendly way so that the general public can have an idea on the meaning of OPCAT and its operational bodies, namely the NPM and the UN Sub-Committee on Prevention of Torture (SPT).

Therefore, this booklet, which is a production of MINIJUST together with the NCHR, has been developed as a basic informative tool to help readers understand how Rwanda promotes and implements the OPCAT. But it can also be of use for any stakeholder willing to contribute to the promotion and implementation of OPCAT or who may have another interest on combating and preventing torture, such as research, etc.

1. What is the OPCAT?

The OPCAT is an international human rights treaty which aims to assist States to implement their existing obligations to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment under the UN Convention Against Torture, and to strengthen the protection of all persons deprived of their liberty.

2. How does OPCAT assist States to prevent torture?

The OPCAT establishes a system of regular visits to all places of deprivation of liberty conducted by national bodies, 'National Preventive Mechanisms' (NPMs) and an international body, the Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture (SPT). The OPCAT bodies work in close cooperation with national authorities in a spirit of constructive dialogue, identifying gaps in laws and practice and finding solutions to protect the rights and dignity of all persons deprived of their liberty.

States party to OPCAT commit themselves to a number of obligations to implement this treaty. Amongst other obligations, each State party shall establish or maintain at the domestic level one or several bodies for the prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, commonly known as National Preventive Mechanism.

3. What are National Preventive Mechanisms?

They are independent national monitoring bodies established by States to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

The OPCAT does not foresee any specific model for NPMs. The States parties decide on the most appropriate NPM structure according to their national context. However, they have to ensure that the NPMs are independent, have adequate resources and are comprised of experts who have the required capabilities and professional knowledge. National authorities have to cooperate with the NPMs.

4. What do NPMs do?

- Conduct visits to any place of detention at any time and examine the treatment of persons and conditions of detention; conduct confidential interviews with persons deprived of liberty and authorities; and check relevant information and records.
- Review and comment on laws, policies and practices relating to the deprivation of liberty.
- Analyse systemic situations, identify gaps and possible root causes of torture and other forms of ill-treatment.
- Make recommendations with concrete solutions to improve conditions of detention, functioning of places of detention, protection of persons deprived of their liberty and respect of human dignity in general.
- Undertake researches and any other initiatives aimed at strengthening the effective prohibition and prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.
- Establish dialogue and cooperation with authorities including on the implementation of the NPMs recommendations.

5. What is the Subcommittee on Prevention of Torture (SPT)?

The SPT is a UN body comprising 25 independent experts from different regions with multidisciplinary expertise, elected by States parties to the OPCAT.

6. What does the SPT do?

- The SPT operates on the basis of confidentiality, impartiality and cooperation.
- It visits places of detention in any State party to the OPCAT and makes a confidential report to the relevant authorities with recommendations to better prevent torture and other ill-treatment.
- It provides advice to authorities on the establishment of NPMs. It also cooperates and assists the NPMs on their functioning.

7. What places of detention will be visited?

The NPM and SPT can visit any place where persons are, or may be, deprived of their liberty. In Rwanda this will include places such as: prisons, police stations, psychiatric institutions, refugee and asylum seekers camps, and elderly centres.

8. But aren't these places visited already?

Yes, they are by different bodies/organs such as the NCHR, National Public Prosecution Authority and Non-Governmental Organisations. However visiting places of detention is one only of a number of areas of work for these bodies, and these visits are often reacting to complaints. The benefit of the NPM is that it is a dedicated body, proactively focusing on prevention with a holistic, analytical and solution based approach.

9. What is Rwanda's commitment as a State party to the OPCAT?

As a State party to the OPCAT Rwanda has to:

- designate an NPM in compliance with OPCAT requirements;
- allocate adequate resources to the NPM to enable it to function effectively;
- provide the NPM and the SPT with any relevant information;
- cooperate with the NPM and SPT to implement their recommendations.

10. What is next in implementing OPCAT in Rwanda?

The government of Rwanda has conducted consultations with various stakeholders that led to the conclusion that it is most appropriate to designate the National Commission of Human Rights (NCHR) as NPM. Next steps should be:

- Finalising the review of the NCHR law integrating the NPM mandate.
- The new legislation should name the structure within the NCHR to operate as the NPM and set out its powers in line with the fundamental principles of the OPCAT.
- Appointment of members of the NPM entity within the NCHR once the new legislation adopted.
- The government should inform the SPT that it has designated its NPM, and ensure that the NPM is operational including by giving adequate resources to the NCHR to carry out the NPM functions effectively.

Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Adopted on 18 December 2002 at the fifty-seventh session of the General Assembly of the United Nations by resolution A/RES/57/199; entered into force on 22 June 2006.

PREAMBLE

The States Parties to the present Protocol,

Reaffirming that torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment are prohibited and constitute serious violations of human rights,

Convinced that further measures are necessary to achieve the purposes of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (hereinafter referred to as the Convention) and to strengthen the protection of persons deprived of their liberty against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment,

Recalling that articles 2 and 16 of the Convention oblige each State Party to take effective measures to prevent acts of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment in any territory under its jurisdiction,

Recognizing that States have the primary responsibility for implementing those articles, that strengthening the protection of people deprived of their liberty and the full respect for their human rights is a common responsibility shared by all and that international implementing bodies complement and strengthen national measures,

Recalling that the effective prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment requires education and a combination of various legislative, administrative, judicial and other measures,

Recalling also that the World Conference on Human Rights firmly declared that efforts to eradicate torture should first and foremost be concentrated on prevention and called for the adoption of an optional protocol to the Convention, intended to establish a preventive system of regular visits to places of detention,

Convinced that the protection of persons deprived of their liberty against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment can be strengthened by non-judicial means of a preventive nature, based on regular visits to places of detention,

Have agreed as follows:

PART I

These visits shall be undertaken with a view to strengthening, if necessary, the protection of these persons against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

2. For the purposes of the present Protocol, deprivation of liberty means any form of detention or imprisonment or the placement of a person in a public or private custodial setting which that person is not permitted to leave at will by order of any judicial, administrative or other authority.
